Not illustrated. 1887 Excerpt: ... County. The rock is of fine and even texture and of excellent quality, and is much used for monumental work and general building. Other quarries of biotite granite occur at Sniithfield, West Greenwich, Newport, and Niantic. A greenish, fine gray, hornblendic gneiss is quarried at Diamond Hill, in Providence County. Aside from the Westerly rock the most of this material is for local market only. Tennessee.--At the present time scarcely anything in the line of granitic rock is quarried in this State, and owing to the limited areas occupied by granite ledges it is more than doubtful if the granite quarrying ever assumes any great importance. Small outcrops of granite, gneiss, or mica schist occur in the extreme eastern and southern parts of Polk, Monroe, Cocke, Washington, Carter, and Johusou Counties, in the eastern part of the State, but even these are not in all cases suitable for Aua. Roy. of State Uoolojjist of New Jersey, 1686, pp. 41-42. any but the roughest work. The Museum collections contain an extremely coarse greenish epidotic granite, with large red porphyritic crystals of orthoclase, from Bench Mountain, in Cocke County, which might perhaps be worked if there were a market. South Carolina.--Although no granites from this State are to be found in our principal markets, it by no means follows that there is any deficiency in the supply. The collection now in the Museum shows, on the contrary, that excellent stones of this class occur in various localities. Near Wiuusborough, iu Fairfield County, quarries have recently been opened which furnish fine-grained gray biotite granite fully equal to auy in the market. The quarries, as we are informed by the owner,

Mr. W. Woodward, cover some 70 acres of bowlders and two large ledges, one 11 acres in extent...
