

The Crisis: A Reply to Alan Greenspan (Transformations Series on International Economics Book 4)

This book is a response to former Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan's paper for the Brookings Papers on Economic Activity titled The Crisis. The authors' end notes are extensive and exhaustive in their scope of analysis to merit the extraordinary length of the tenure of Alan Greenspan at the Federal Reserve beginning before the end of the Cold War in 1987 to the period after September 11, 2001. His 4 terms at the Fed, just shy of William McChesney Martin's tenure, have seen tumult, growth, and global economic integration, yet considerable discontent as documented by Nobel Economics Laureate Joseph Stiglitz and Alan Greenspan himself in his book The Age of Turbulence: Adventures in a New World. The authors' contention is for a new economics and so are the authors' contributions to economic science, for we all live in an unprecedented age of disruptive change for the better requiring a post-Keynesian economic framework that need not be turbulent given adequate political sensibility and foresight.
